

Editor's Note

Volume 6 of the Publications of the Medieval Association of the Midwest has profited greatly from the editorial changes that MAM adopted last year. Our change from Proceedings to Publications has helped bring new voices and fresh material to the journal. Mel Storm and I are redoubling our efforts to publish PMAM on an annual basis, and we continue our practice of editing alternate issues. Submissions are up and the quality and complexity of the articles brings credit to the organization.

Many thanks, as always, to our contributors, who have produced manuscripts that testify to the wide range of medieval scholarship occurring in the midwest, and, indeed, all over the country. We could not produce PMAM without the industrious readers who evaluate submissions and help guide both authors and editors. For this volume, those readers included Nona Flores, Loren Gruber, Robin Hass, Norman Hinton, William Hodapp, Pat Hollahan, James Hoy, Harriet Hudson, Richard Kay, Toni Morris, Michael Myers, Mary Olson, Edward L. Ridsen, Jonathan Wilcox, Joseph Wittig, and William Woods.

My editorial efforts are supported financially by the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences at the University of Illinois at Springfield in the form of equipment, supplies, photocopying and postage. The members of the English Department at UIS provide a collegial and supportive network that sustains me. Most importantly, Jennifer Evans, my graduate student assistant, has once again proven invaluable to this project. Her experience and initiative carried us through my hectic schedule and a series of impediments. We persevered yet again.
